

THE FORD

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

FORD HEAT-TREATMENT

A certain kind of Vanadium steel is used in a limited way elsewhere—but FORD Vanadium is FORD steel.

Every important part of the FORD MODEL T is specially heat-treated for its particular work. It must be made tough or hard or springy—as the conditions demand.

It cost the Ford Motor Company considerably over $200,000 to incorporate this special heat-treating equipment in its great manufacturing plant.

Vanadium steel, scientifically heat-treated, has made it possible for the Ford Motor Company to build a car extra light in weight and yet tremendously strong.

A FORD car can be lifted from the floor by the four fender irons, no one of which is larger than your little finger. Try this with any other car and witness the effect.

As Vanadium is practically twice as strong as ordinary steel we, of course, use less of it—and thereby materially lighten the car's weight—and at the same time greatly add to its strength and safety.

Vanadium steel construction is a distinct FORD advantage. An advantage which we cannot unduly emphasize.

Grandpa Nichols has been having a large and splendid time of it, hunting in the region of big game near The Dalles. His most notable feat was in the homestead ranch of his son, W. L. Nichols, back of The Dalles, where he rounded up and shot to death a gigantic black bear, and has sent the hindquarters of the monster down here to Will as a guarantee of good faith. While the neighbors here are chewing it up the veteran hunters remain with the intent of thinning out any other terror that may be ranging the forest.

A bad and near fatal accident befell little Dan Pierson, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Pierson, on Friday. Harry Wolhart had a thrilling encounter with a rattlesnake Friday and came off second best. He was hauling wood with a four-horse team near the Foberg place, and while busy in the bush was struck by the snake on the forearm. He first did what probably saved his life—namely, sucked the wound as completely as he could, then hurried home, swallowed a stimulant, and hastened on to a Hood River doctor, arriving there a decidedly sick man. He is now well, for Henry is not the sort of man to let a serpent get away with him. We haven't ascertained the fate of the snake, nor its length, breadth and thickness, as Mr. W. didn't feel like sparing the time to count the buttons or apply a tape line.

A reception to the new teachers of the school will be given on Friday evening, September 19, by the Parent-Teacher club. The above named club held an interesting and profitable meeting last Friday afternoon. The proceedings included a good talk by Miss Northey, of Hood River, elucidating the advantages of cooperation of the rural school districts and the county library; also a short address by Miss McLaren, of Hood River, on the work of clubs like this and the use of the library. Miss Stanton spoke instructively on the need and use of amusements for school children, and suggested several kinds of simple apparatus for their healthful exercise and diversion. She made the practical suggestion that parents or friends could construct most of the devices needed, and set them up on the school playground. The Parent-Teacher club has engaged to take this matter up.

An important move has been made by Oak Grove fruit and berry growers looking to the erection of a packing house for this district. At a meeting on Friday a committee that has been appointed to consult with representative of the Hood River Apple Growers Association, reported that the latter were decidedly favorable to the project. As a result of the ensuing discussion there was formed a temporary organization to be known as the Oak Grove Packing House, offered as follows: President, Paul R. Hughes; vice president, D. F. Pierson; secretary and treasurer, George C. Gladen. The details are yet to be discussed and agreed upon, but there is a general and hearty concurrence of our fruit growers in the movement. The location for the packing house at present most favored is the crest of the acclivity just northeast of the cross roads and store. There being no uphill road from that point to town, a packing house in that locality would effect a great saving of haul, giving teams a capacity load from there to the shipping point. There are several proposed methods to provide ways and means for the building which will require an outlay of at least $2000. That matter, however, will be readily met and arranged.

Dabney Buys Five Acres
